3. Here you have some other examples of diaries:

Monday 22nd June

Dear Diary,

Today was the first day of my summer holidays. I spent the day playing in the garden and flopped down with a book in hand to read. I made a plan of finishing thirty books in thirty days. My friend who lives next door came over and we decided to help out my father in the garden when he came home from work. We played scrabble and chess until evening. Mum made us muffins and we happily wolfed them down.

Tuesday 23rd June

Dear diary

I am very happy today, I went to the waterpark today, oh my god, I enjoyed it a lot! We went there, we started at 8: 00, reached at 10:00, whoa, a two hour journey, when we reached at the park, we enrolled or names, bought our tickets and then Rachel and I, splashed water on each other, and then enjoyed different slides, while Lauren and Kristen, took high slides, we then sat on tubes and then slided around the pool, then we enjoyed and admired a fabulous and marvelous dolphin show! Then we stopped by a Royal restaurant, ate to our hearts content and then tampered off to our houses, enthusiastically chattering about this fantastic day! I had lots of fun today, I have to go to sleep now Bye!

4. Now you must decide:

Are you going to do it in a notebook (a physical diary) or on computer (a virtual diary)?

5. You must write your diary entry approximately at the same time everyday for 2 WEEKS at least.

6. You can write about:

What did you do? What did you learn? What problems did you have? How could I solve the problems? What am I going to do the next day/s And many more things

- 7. Always write the date before and also you can add pictures, videos (tick tocks), music, audios, recordings, images, drawings, everything you think it will help to illustrate your ideas better.
- 8. When you finish your diary entry, check what you have written and correct it if necessary. A useful corrector is: https://www.reverso.net/ortografia/corrector-ingles/
